Euan Johnston and his wife Anne started Toucan jewellery in 1998. They were drawn to the fine art produced by their ancestors, the great artists and craftworkers of the Pictish Nation of nearly two thousand years ago, pre-dating Christianity in those parts.

They were inspired first by the great carved slab stones that stand all over the Highlands of Scotland including their own locality near Meigle in Perthshire, and later were fascinated by their counterparts who created the famous book of Kells, Durrow and Lindisfarne. Also by imagery found all over Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Breton and parts of England produced by early Celts.

The methods of construction and meaning have baffled scholars for generations and are thought to be concerned with spiritual growth, strength and the path through life to the heavens.

Toucan Designs are original and designed in Scotland to the highest possible standard. The range is always expanding and improving.

They are proud in their way to contribute to an ancient timeless tradition.
